

Data Science Meetup Experience

I attended a networking event/talk title 'Will Artificial Intelligence Replace Consulting?'. The event was held at The Shard in London and was hosted by Warwick Tech and Warwick Business School, these are societies from the university that I graduated from last year. I caught up with some friends and met new acquaintances from the university ranging from fields in tech (programmers, data scientists) to more business orientated field (economics, consulting etc).

It was an interesting experience listening to consultants discuss the topic of AI. While there was acknowledgement that the capability of AI is immense, the general feeling was that AI could not out-consult a consultant since AI does not possess specific domain knowledge or the human interaction element and so on.
